Daniel's Visit to His Aunt's Village

Daniel had always lived in a big city, surrounded by tall buildings, busy streets, and bright lights. He had never spent much time in the countryside, but this summer, his parents sent him to visit his aunt in a small village.

At first, Daniel didn't like it. The village was too quiet, and there was no internet connection. He missed his friends and his favorite online games. However, after a few days, he started to enjoy the simple life.

Daniel helped his aunt in her vegetable garden, picking fresh tomatoes and cucumbers. He also took care of the animals on the farm. His favorite task was feeding the baby goats in the morning.

One afternoon, his cousin invited him on a bicycle ride through the fields. The ride was difficult at first because Daniel wasn't used to riding on country roads. But as they cycled past rivers and forests, he realized how beautiful nature was.

On his last evening in the village, his aunt and cousin organized a picnic by the lake. They made sandwiches, played games, and watched the sunset. As Daniel sat by the water, he realized that he had learned something important—life in the countryside was different from the city, but it had its own charm.

When he returned home, he told his parents that he wanted to visit his aunt again next summer.

A. Why didn't Daniel like the village at first?

1. He didn't like his aunt's food.
2. He couldn't use the internet.

3. The weather was too hot.
4. He didn't have a bicycle.

B. What was Daniel's favorite task on the farm?

1. Picking vegetables.
2. Cooking meals.
3. Feeding the baby goats.
4. Cleaning the house.

C. What did Daniel realize during the bike ride?

1. The roads were easy to ride on.
2. He preferred playing video games.
3. Nature was more beautiful than he expected.
4. He didn't like sports.

D. How did Daniel feel at the end of his visit?

1. He never wanted to return.
2. He missed the city and didn't enjoy the trip.
3. He was sad and wanted to stay longer.
4. He wanted to come back next summer.

A School History Project

This week, our class had to do a project about famous historical places. My group chose to research the Great Wall of China. It was an _____ (A. INCREDIBLE) experience because we learned many interesting facts. The Great Wall is one of the _____ (B. LONG) structures in the world. It was built to protect China from invasions, and it took many years to complete.

One of the most _____ (C. SURPRISE) facts was that millions of workers helped build the wall. Some sections of the wall are more than 2,000 years old, which makes it one of the _____ (D. OLD) man-made structures still standing today.

At the end of the project, our teacher said it was one of the most _____ (E. INFORM) presentations of the class.

Hi Emily,

Thanks for your email! Baking sounds like a fun hobby. My favorite hobby is painting. I started painting two years ago when I joined an art club at school.

I like painting because it helps me express my creativity. I enjoy using different colors and trying new styles. Sometimes, I paint landscapes, but I also like drawing portraits of my family and friends.

Last month, I took part in an art competition and won second place! It was a great experience.

Do you want to become a professional baker in the future? Looking forward to your reply!

Best,

[Your Name]
